AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

The Centre shall aim to promote the conservation, protection and betterment of the environment along sound ecological principles and guidelines, by, for example:

- Acting as an environmental voice, public advocate and community conscience, by adopting policies and undertaking action to support the good health of the global environment, including public statements, press releases and submissions to promote the Centre's functions, services and policies.
- Participating in, initiating and supporting non-violent campaigns of local, state, national and global significance for the environment.
- Promoting objective environmental planning and rational land use.
- Supporting development policies that allow the ecologically sustainable use of natural resources.
- Developing environmental education programs for use in schools, other public organisations and the community in general.
- Maintaining and developing a suitably indexed source of information on environmental matters, including printed material and other media.
- Providing office space and facilities for organisations which support the Centre's aims.
- Affiliating with other groups and organisations whose aims are consistent the Centre's.
- Maintaining a website and/or social media accounts to provide information on environmental matters and campaigns.
- Carrying out, participating in or facilitating on-ground ecological repair and regeneration works.
- Supporting landholders to improve protection of their land's environmental values.
